Fryszak, Poland (new cemetery) Of the town's rabbanim: Reb Mendele of Riminow zt"l

Following rabbanim: Hgh"K Rebbe Yitzchok L. Wagshal zy"א (interred in new cemetery) \ Son Rebbe Yechiel zy"א (interred in new cemetery) \ Grandson Rebbe Yisroel zy"א (interred in new cemetery) \ Hgh"K Rebbe Menachem Mendel Halberstam zy"א [Father of Koloshitz'er Rav zt"l] (interred in new cemetery) [Grandson of Baal Divrei Chaim]

After much effort of prominent descendants, the lofty mission of restoring this holy cemetery was launched. At this time, we commend the notable efforts of the askanim led by the Shinove Rebbe shlit"a who invested a lot of work to restore the site. At this time, intense work is underway to ascertain the borders, so that a protective fence can be erected around the entire cemetery.

Comments and Concerns · Goal: to clarify details regarding cemetery restoration #3

Question: I often read bulletins announcing updates about "Zichron Avoyseinu" where all gravestones of a cemetery are photographed and documented with thorough clarity. From what I understand, "Avoyseinu" only provides this service once the cemetery is fully restored. What's the purpose of creating such a database if the cemetery is anyways properly preserved?

Answer: It's true that "Zichron Avoyseinu" is only a byproduct of our larger goal, since our commitment is to restore and preserve cemeteries through erecting a protective fence, repairing the gravestones and arranging year-round maintenance. Nevertheless, it is still very important to document the invaluable information of the niftarim in a cemetery, as this often serves to verify the burial place and other important details of their ancestors – for descendants.

In the past week, we witnessed such an episode. After visiting kivrei avos, the family of Rabbi Yosef H. Weinstock approached "Avoyseinu" disappointed that they weren't able to properly read the date of the yahrtzeit of their ancestress, Mrs. Chaya Esther a"h, wife of the esteemed Rabbi Shlomo Sofer z"l. "Avoyseinu", who produced a database of this cemetery in year 2008 when the stone was less corroded and still legible, was able to provide the information. During the conversation, they also expressed their distress that despite their very long search, they didn't find their zeide's matzeiva at all. It's impossible to describe their sheer joy when "Avoyseinu" pulled up the full information on this stone along with a clear photo of it!

The tremendous milestone of the 209 restored cemeteries through HFPJC, sponsored by the devoted descendants raised inspiration among others who want to participate in this noble mitzvah. Thus, the following column explains several concerns to assist those who wish to fulfill their obligation toward their ancestral resing sites.

- Answers on common questions
- Necessary considerations when visiting a cemetery
- Practical advice etc.
